2013 INVESTOR DAY

March 22, 2013 Toronto

Speaker Bios

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

James C. Smith is President and Chief Executive Officer of Thomson Reuters. Prior to becoming CEO in January 2012, he held a number of key leadership positions over his 25 year career with Thomson Reuters, including Chief Operating Officer of Thomson Reuters, Chief Executive Officer of Thomson Reuters Professional division and Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Thomson.

Mr. Smith received a BA from Marshall University

PRESIDENT, FINANCIAL & RISK

David Craig is president of Thomson Reuters Financial & Risk business, which has over US$7B in revenues in 180 countries. The business is the leading provider of financial information, news, workflow and trading solutions to financial services. Financial & Risk serves four main customer segments:

- Trading
- Investors
- Marketplaces
- Governance, Risk and Compliance

Prior to this role, David was president and founder of the Governance, Risk and Compliance (GRC) business of Thomson Reuters, which launched in 2010 to help professionals in highly regulated industries around the world deal with the growing raft of regulation, risk and compliance requirements. GRC received a SABEW (Society of American Business Editors and Writers) award for its global regulatory coverage and analysis and was rated as an Industry Leader by Gartner three years in a row. From just $20m David grew GRC to a $250m business, 18% organically, and rate as an industry leader.

From 2007 to 2010, David was Executive Vice president and Chief Strategy Officer for Thomson Reuters. For three years he led the companywide strategy, business innovation and M&A strategy leading several key initiatives including a step change in emerging markets, the entry into Legal solutions, and organic growth in commodities and energy.

Before joining Thomson Reuters, David was a partner at McKinsey in London for eight years where he focused on financial services, media and technology. He was the youngest McKinsey partner in London and led McKinsey IT Strategy Practice, founding the Outsourcing and Offshoring Practices and specialising in trading technology. He worked for large number of financial services customers including Barclays Bank plc, London Stock Exchange, Reuters, Hong Kong Exchange, UBS, EDS.

Prior to McKinsey David was a senior partner at AMS (American Management Systems) where he worked for 8 years implementing financial trading, risk and financial exchange systems in the US, Europe and Asia.

As well as a manager David is an industry thought leader on innovation. Over his career he has published several leading papers on technology, finance and regulation including “Intelligence, Intuition and Information”, "IT as a Competitive Weapon" and "The M&A Approach to Outsourcing" and most recently “Public Private Partnerships to Fight Financial Crime” with the Atlantic Council.

He has presented at the Tuck School of Business, at the Aspen Ideas Festival, London Business School MBA class where the GRC growth story has become part of the MBA curriculum. He won the McKinsey Global Award for Research for his work on outsourcing and was a judge for four years on the European Banking Technology Awards. In 2012 David was nominated number 15 of the top 50 global leaders and innovators in financial services technology by Institutional Investor Magazine

David is on the Board of the Thomson Reuters Foundation, which runs the highly successful TrustLaw global legal pro-bono matching service, and David has recently been appointed as a board member of the Atlantic Council based in Washington DC, reflecting his work in financial services regulation globally. He is also on the CityUK council in London and a strong advocate of financial services as a driver of economic growth. He is a director of the Thomson Reuters UK entity.

David has many other interests outside work including sailing (he captained the McKinsey London racing team and is a qualified yacht master), ski touring, mountain biking and mountaineering. David lives in London and is married with three children.

MANAGING DIRECTOR, TRADING

Peter leads the Trading segment which serves the financial community, allowing all market participants to connect, access rich content and trade in a secure environment. By offering customers a combination of the Eikon desktop, the Elektron network, Content and Transactions Trading supports every aspect of the trade process and enable innovation across all markets and asse t classes.

Peter joined Reuters in 1990, after 10 years in the IT industry. His first role was as a software development manager responsible for a London Stock Exchange feed handler. Peter has worked across the entire spectrum of the business: project and product management, marketing, sales, account management, development, strategy, and customer service.

Prior to the merger, he headed up the Reuters Enterprise Division, and most recently Content & Technology Operations with responsibility for much of the merger integration and the Content & Customer Service group with a focus on the full, end-to-end customer experience.

Peter received a First Class Honours Degree in Maths and Computer Science from Bristol University in the United Kingdom.

GLOBAL HEAD, EQUITIES, FEEDS & PLATFORM

Ralf Roth is the Managing Director, Equities, Feeds & Platform at Thomson Reuters. In his role, he oversees Elektron, the firm's high performance data and trading infrastructure and the Enterprise Platform encompassing real-time, velocity analytics, and data management. Ralf has nearly 20 years of international experience focused on automated trading.

Prior to joining Thomson Reuters, Ralf served as Managing Director and Global Head of Product Development at Deutsche Bank. While at Deutsche Bank, he was responsible for all aspects of product innovation and delivery for algorithmic and high frequency trading. Previously, Ralf was Chief Infrastructure Officer for Global Prime Finance at the Bank where he managed the infrastructure to support their leading prime brokerage franchise. He has also held senior positions in Fixed Income at Deutsche Bank in Frankfurt and London.

Ralf has an M.S. in Computer Science from Universität des Saarlandes and has acted as an assistant professor and Unix System Administrator in their Department of Computer Science. He has also served as Director of the Board for BrokerTec Global, MTS Associated Markets and MTS Amsterdam and as co-chair of the European Ecommerce Committee of The Bond Market Association.

GLOBAL HEAD OF DESKTOP/MOBILE PLATFORM

Philip Brittan is Global Head of Desktop/Mobile platform at Thomson Reuters. He is responsible for the product development and future strategy of Eikon, the Company's flagship financial markets desktop.

Brittan joined Thomson Reuters in 2011, having previously been global head of Google Finance. Prior to that, he headed Bloomberg's foreign exchange and economics businesses for six years.

Brittan has a strong entrepreneurial history, having founded, managed and sold several successful software development companies including Spheresoft Inc. in 1995, and Droplets Inc. in 2000, a venture-capital-backed firm which develops a patented Rich Internet Application technology used by leading corporations.

Brittan started his career in Product Development at financial software firm, Astrogamma, rising to become the company's CEO in 1993 where he was instrumental in the development of Fenics, which became the benchmark application for currency option pricing at the time.

Brittan holds an A.B. in computer science from Harvard University and has registered five technology patents in his name for matters as diverse as the construction of currency strength indices and a system and method for delivering a graphical user interface of remote applications over a thin bandwidth connection.

Brittan was awarded a Harvard College scholarship for academic achievement as well as the Korean War Memorial scholarship for illustrating the traits of leadership, responsibility and selflessness.

MANAGING DIRECTOR, INVESTORS

Neil Masterson is Managing Director of the Investors Division of Thomson Reuters, a position he has held since December 2011.

The Investors business comprises the Asset Management, Enterprise Content, Hedge Funds, Banking & Advisory and North American Wealth Management sectors, which collectively provide content and analytics to institutions that serve investors.

In his first year at the helm, Neil has steered Investors to quarterly sequential growth in revenues and launched an ambitious transformation program to re-focus the business on serving customers on the buy side. Previously, Neil was Managing Director for two of the Investors businesses; Investment Management and Banking & Advisory, where he presided over their restructuring and re-positioning for growth.

Neil originally joined the Thomson Group in May 2002 and has held a number of senior leadership roles. As Vice President, Treasury and Corporate Planning at Thomson Corporate, he was responsible for the corporate planning process and managing external relationships with rating agencies. He was actively involved in the disposal of Thomson Learning and the subsequent acquisition of Reuters. He set up the Decision Support function within Thomson Financial and was Head of Finance for the Global Customer Segment responsible for customers in the Institutional Equities, Fixed Income, Investment Banking, Investment Management and Retail spaces.

Prior to joining Thomson, Neil worked for two years at Reuters as Senior Vice President of Business Development, within the Corporate and Media division.

Neil graduated from University College, London, and began his career at KPMG in London, where he qualified as a Chartered Accountant. Before moving to the United States, Neil spent five years working in the United Kingdom’s retailing industry.

CFO, FINANCIAL & RISK

Tim Collier is the Chief Financial Officer of Thomson Reuters Financial and Risk Business. A US$7 billion business focused on delivering critical information, analytics and news to financial and risk professionals in over 100 countries worldwide.

In this role Tim is responsible for driving financial and risk performance, optimizing resources and enhancing growth through organic and strategic investments. He is also responsible for Customer Administration and Commercial Policy for the business. He Chairs the Operating Review and is a member of the Investment Committee.

His experience has spanned industries and functions including banking, corporate, treasury, insurance, audit, chief accounting officer and M&A.

Joining Reuters as Director of Group Treasury in 2002, Tim was brought in to reorganize the Treasury department, which he ran together with insurance and a number of M&A transactions, before moving to manage Internal Audit. Then he ran both the mergers and acquisitions team and the central finance operation where he became a key executive in the Thomson acquisition of Reuters. Following the close of the Thomson Reuters transaction, Tim relocated to the US and became Senior Vice President, Finance and Business Development, for the Thomson Reuters Corporation. In this role he was responsible for the Financial Planning & Analysis function (FP&A), as well as Internal Audit and a number of transaction services.

Before joining Reuters, Tim was Director of Group Treasury at United Business Media, a FTSE 100 U.K. global business media company with responsibility Treasury, insurance and M&A.

Prior to that he held a variety of financial positions in banking, culminating as a managing director for Chase where he was active in a broad range of banking activities from lending to M&A. He started out at NatWest before moving to Manufacturers Hanover, and following a series of mergers with Chemical and Chase, became Managing Director for the media division of corporate finance.

Tim serves on the board of The Child Guidance Center of Southern Connecticut.

He resides with his wife and two children in Connecticut.

CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER

Stephane Bello is the Chief Financial Officer of Thomson Reuters. He assumed this role on January 1, 2012 after recently serving as Chief Financial Officer of the company's Professional division for four years. Bello joined the company in 2001 as a Senior Vice President and Treasurer of The Thomson Corporation where he was responsible for the company's global treasury operations, risk management and capital markets activities. In addition to these responsibilities, he led the company's business development activities which included the divestiture of the Thomson Learning business and the acquisition of the Reuters Group.

Prior to joining the company, Bello held several positions at General Motors in its treasury division, including regional Treasurer of General Motors Europe and Assistant Treasurer of General Motors in New York. Bello holds degrees in Law and Economic Law from the Universite libre de Bruxelles and is fluent in French, Spanish and English.